Re: Delay of MARPOL Annex VI NOx Emission Standards

Dear Mr. Perciasepe,

Friends of the Earth attaches to this letter a petition from over 14,600 supporters in the United States asking the EPA to begin rulemaking proceedings to reduce nitrogen oxides (NOx) emissions from new ships in U.S. waters, extending to the outer boundary of its exclusive economic zone. As the International Maritime Organization may, at its Marine Environment Protection Committee meeting in March 2014, decide to delay implementation of stringent NOx standards within Emission Control Areas (ECA) from 2016 until 2021, including within the North America ECA, unilateral action by the EPA on this matter is imperative to protect public health and the environment. While U.S.-flagged vessels are subject to domestic regulations in 2016, foreign-flagged vessels—which are far more numerous in U.S. waters and ports—are not covered. Therefore, since the implementation date of MARPOL Annex VI Tier III NOx standards is in danger of being pushed back five years, we ask that the EPA exercise its existing authority under the Clean Air Act to regulate NOx from new foreign-flagged ships in U.S. waters, as well, by 2016.

Materials viewed by email activists and the request to EPA are included in Annex A. The above-mentioned petition to EPA with the full listing of signers is included in Annex B. Should you have any questions, please let me know.

Yours truly,

Act now to protect North America from deadly shipping emissions

Dear FoE member,

The health of millions of Americans is at risk. Thanks to pressure from Russia, the U.N. agency responsible for crafting pollution standards from ships is poised to undermine crucial North American clean air rules.

Friends of the Earth fought for these new rules -- called the North America Emission Control Area -- for more than a decade. Last summer the rules finally began going into effect, and, according to the EPA, will save an estimated 12,000 to 31,000 premature deaths each year by 2030!

But now the U.N. agency that approved the rules is caving to international pressure -- led by Russia -- to roll back implementation for five years.

The United States, fortunately, does have other options at its disposal. The EPA has the legal authority under the Clean Air Act to protect its residents and unique ecosystems by unilaterally regulating emissions from ships in its waters, both domestic- and foreign-flagged.

Please take action now and tell EPA Acting Administrator Bob Perciasepe to take matters into his own hands and regulate smog-forming emissions from ships along our coastline.

The rules Russia has proposed to roll back regulate nitrogen oxide, or NOx -- the pollutant that causes ozone and smog. Ozone and smog severely impact vulnerable populations, like the elderly and children with asthma.

The new rules would have limited NOx emissions on ships up to 230 miles from North America's coasts. But now these rules may not go into effect until 2021 despite the fact that the emissions-cutting technology already exists and is cost-effective.

We don't need to wait to take action to save lives and ecosystems. Urge EPA Acting Administrator Bob Perciasepe to protect the United States from the harmful effects of ship pollution.

More than 30 major U.S. ports are located in areas that fail to meet Clean Air Act standards for ozone. The ECA was designed to improve air quality not only along U.S. coastlines but also within interior portions of the country including inside national treasures such as the Grand Canyon National Park and the Great Smoky Mountains.

If fully implemented, by 2020 the ECA is expected to eliminate 320,000 tons of nitrogen oxides, a 23 percent decrease from projected levels. Further, reductions in later years are predicted to be even more substantial as greater numbers of ships are subjected to the rules. Enactment of the ECA could save the United States more than $100 billion in health costs by 2020.

Take action today and tell the EPA it must act to protect Americans from air pollution!

2) Supplemental information and letter to EPA

Help protect North America from the dangers of ship pollution

Important life- and ecosystem-saving ship emissions regulations are in danger. Recent developments at the U.N. agency responsible for regulating ship pollution could mean a five-year delay in the implementation of live-saving air pollution rules.

Ship-borne emissions off North American coastlines are massive. Without proper controls, smog-forming emissions of nitrogen oxide from ships are projected to more than double by 2030, growing to 2.1 million tons a year.

Presently, international standards to regulate smog- and particulate-forming nitrogen oxides from ships are weak. These standards were supposed to be strengthened considerably within the U.S.-Canada Emission Control Area, but now they may not appear until 2021.

Fortunately, the United States can take matters into its own hands to protect itself from the dangers of international ship pollution. Please write the Acting Administrator Bob Perciasepe of the EPA and urge him to begin the process of regulating nitrogen oxides from shipping in U.S. waters via the Clean Air Act.

Send your letter below and help protect public health and the environment.

Dear Acting Administrator Bob Perciasepe,

With the recent unsupported decision by the International Maritime Organization to potentially delay robust nitrogen oxide standards for new vessels in Emission Control Areas by five years, EPA action is needed to ensure our public health and environment are protected.

We urge you to initiate a domestic rulemaking to regulate nitrogen oxides from shipping out to 230 miles from our coastlines using your authority under the Clean Air Act as soon as possible, and particularly before December 2013, in order to significantly curtail nitrogen oxide emissions from ships in U.S. waters. Many deaths and respiratory ailments, and impacts to public welfare, could be prevented if the United States were to regulate these harmful smog- and particulate-forming emissions in its waters by 2016, the date originally set by the IMO.

Relying on the IMO to satisfactorily handle this ship pollution issue after it indicated its willingness to delay ECA standards by five years is unwise and unsound. The EPA must take strong and decisive action immediately on this health-protective issue.
