CODE OF FEDERAL REGULATIONS (ANNUAL EDITION)

The Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) annual edition is the codification of the general and permanent rules published in the Federal Register by the departments and agencies of the Federal Government. It is divided into 50 titles that represent broad areas subject to Federal regulation. The 50 subject matter titles contain one or more individual volumes, which are updated once each calendar year, on a staggered basis. The annual update cycle is as follows: titles 1-16 are revised as of January 1; titles 17-27 are revised as of April 1; titles 28-41 are revised as of July 1; and titles 42-50 are revised as of October 1. Each title is divided into chapters, which usually bear the name of the issuing agency. Each chapter is further subdivided into parts that cover specific regulatory areas. Large parts may be subdivided into subparts. All parts are organized in sections, and most citations to the CFR refer to material at the section level. - If you have access to an alternative PDF writer, like a CutePDF, you can "print" the GPO version of the CFR electronically. This will allow you to highlight and add notes and save it as a working copy. While a CutePDF can be downloaded for free, you should check with your IT department first.
- AdobePro, which some have access to, does not change the security settings when saving the PDF and will not allow you to make notations or highlight. Please also note that once you make notations on an electronic CFR, it is no longer an official document and further consideration should be given when using it for official purposes.

Pros of the FDsys CFRs:

- The FDsys is the "official" version of the CFR
- The site allows you to select a small/specific section of the CFR to download/view
  - Easy to download entire volumes
  - Downloaded PDFs are searchable

Cons of the FDsys CFRs:

- The PDFs downloaded from the site are "secure" meaning they cannot be highlighted or notated*
- It can be time consuming to expand sections
- Searching feature will find more than the specific sections intended

e-CFR

The e-CFR is the unofficial version of the CFR that is kept up to date daily, and includes the updated date for material added, changed or removed. While it is not the official version, it is still a good version for CFR inquiries: <http://www.ecfr.gov>. This version is created by the Government Publishing Office, but it is authorized rather than official. It can have mistakes. For the most accurate information, the official version of the CFR should be used with the changes found in the Federal Register. The e-CFR is available for free to the public.

The Government Publishing Office is currently user-testing a brand new look for their internet presence.

- Menus are simpler and more easily navigated.
- Text is larger and easier to read.
- Buttons are larger.
- Warning: programming is incomplete and some of the website functions do not work correctly.
E.g.: long drop-down menus do not scroll.
- The programmers are seeking comments and suggestions if you want to contribute.

The screenshot shows the GovInfo.gov website. At the top left, there is a 'Beta Release' banner and the 'govinfo' logo. A navigation menu includes 'Browse', 'About', 'Developers', 'Features', 'Help', and 'Feedback'. The main heading reads 'Discover U.S. Government Information'. Below this is a search interface with three tabs: 'SEARCH', 'ADVANCED', and 'CITATION'. The 'SEARCH' tab is active, showing a search bar with the placeholder text 'What are you searching for?' and an orange 'SEARCH' button. Below the search bar are five filter cards: 'A to Z' (Browse documents by alphabetical order), 'Category' (Browse documents in specific collections), 'Date' (Browse documents within a timeframe or date range), 'Committee' (Browse documents by the issuing committee), and 'Author' (Browse documents by government authors). A red 'New' badge is located at the bottom right of the 'Author' card.

Simple Search Tips (Search on the main screen)

- Enter your search terms in the box and press the search button to conduct a search of the entire collection.
- Below the Search box there are options to limit the search to documents published in a particular date range and to include or exclude publications only available in hardcopy.
- Simply check the boxes of the conditions you wish to include in your search results and click the search button.
- The Simple Search is limited by design to search for all the terms in the search box.
- Simple Search is designed to automatically remove filler words such as “an” and “the,” that will prevent a successful search.
- Simple search does not support search wild cards such as “*”.
- Use date limiters to increase the speed and efficiency of retrieving your search results:
- For example: check the 2000-2005 box to retrieve a 2002 document. Limiting dates can also speed retrieval times.
- Include more terms or to limit your search terms to words which are sufficiently specific.
- Use uncommon words to retrieve documents with more focused results.

Searching by EPA Publication Number (Simple Search)

- Remove the EPA prefix, all punctuation, space and non-alphanumeric characters before initiating the search.
- For example change EPA 600/R-04-030.A to 600r04030a.
- Not all documents in the NEPIS collection follow the current EPA numbering format.

Advanced Search

- Advanced Search allows you to control the breadth or narrowness of your search by specifying how the key words you provide are used and the relationships between them.
- You can control how aggressively the search matches your terms and where those terms should be applied.
- As with the other searches, you can limit which publication date.

Search Modes:

- cloud search - This is a special case of the "all words" search. This variant does not automatically display the result list. Instead, the number of documents found is reported and a "word cloud" is displayed from which results can be selected.
- boolean operators – Allows you to enter your own combination of terms in the search box using AND, OR, and NOT. Words not separated by an operator must appear together and in order. Most precise results.
- all words - Every word entered must appear somewhere in the text. Word order is irrelevant.
- any words – Results will contain any of the terms entered. This will mean that the more terms you add, the larger the number of results. Similar to using the boolean "OR" operator. This is most useful when you need to search for various synonyms.

Example: regulation rule ordinance

Advanced Search Rules

- 1) With the exception of NOT, place operators only between search terms, and never at the beginning or end of a search statement.
- 2) Use NOT in conjunction with a single content word, for example: NOT car
- 3) NOT may never appear at the end of a search statement. You may also use NOT with a phrase in parentheses, for example: NOT (new york)
- 4) With the exception of NOT, two operators cannot appear in sequence in a search statement. You can use the NOT operator with AND and OR, that is, AND NOT and OR NOT.
- 5) Because all operators are noise words, you cannot use them as content words in search statements. For example, the search statement, “and OR or” will not be accepted.
- 6) The EPA Publications Web Server is not case sensitive; it regards uppercase and lowercase letters as identical. We show operators in upper case for emphasis and clarity.
- 7) An operator can appear more than once in a search statement.
- 8) The W/n operator must include an integer in the range 1 to 16,382, followed by a space and a content word. Omit comma in integer.
- 9) You can use one term to retrieve both the hyphenated and non-hyphenated spellings:
  - database retrieves database and data-base, but not data base
  - data-base retrieves data-base, but not database and data base
  - data base retrieves data-base and data base, but not database.
